

Most dear ones,

Sara & I are back from an incredible last week, one of the hardest Christmas seasons we've ever had [w/the exception, perhaps, of '88s...]

As many of you already know, my mother --Adrienne Vilaire-Eustache-- went home with Jesus on Tue. Dec. 19th, 2006. She was 81, & outspokenly longed for heaven... God did, indeed, heard her prayer.

Our thanks to the many that called, prayed, shared tears with us &/or blessed us with sweet responses to our last minute email, as we rushed to LAX to catch the plane... we treasure them. To the ones that were not notified then, due to obvious time & emotional constraints... our heart felt apologies. We know we can count on your gracious understanding.

We are exhausted, yet incredibly filled by God's grace. While it should have not surprised us, we did experience --& still are!-- the amazing, undeniable, extraordinary reality of the multidimensional power of God's promises, literally embodied in our lives & materialized all around us in these taxing moments... I never thought I could speak, play my instruments, talk & deal with so many people [yes, our mother, & her family are --indeed-- much loved... countless friends showed up!]

God does not fail! He promised to give us a "peace that goes beyond all understanding", that "He can give us abundantly & exceedingly more than what we can ask, or understand" & He sure delivered!...

We are confident that we will see her again in a way better, richer place... full of purpose, creativity & meaning, having eternity to exercise the destiny for which she was created...

She is in the place unknowingly craved --& proven-- by modern society. We want to extend our live-span [through genetic research & other means...], exploit plastic surgery to hide aging, desiring the best that modern times can offer... Don't we all want to go to the best exotic, far-away places for 'dream vacations'... or 'drool' over a Ferrari, Maserati or Alfa Romeo, or when we see on TV the houses & lives of "The Rich & Famous"? Indeed, we yearn --heck, crave-- for heaven! It has so much more than we could ever imagine! The fact is that we do not know how to deal with death because God didn't originally create us to die... sin did! Thus, since we are eternal beings, an inexorable question arises: where will we spend eternity? I know where my mother is... & I know where I will be! Much loved, dear friends, our question to you is: Where will you spend eternity?

Again, thank you all so much for your love, sympathy & support.

We love you very much, and wish you all a happy & blessed new year 2007... May God fulfill the unmatched plan, purpose, substantial & unique meaning He has designed for each one of your precious lives,

Your friends,

Pedro & Sara Eustache
